Charlotte Country Day School
1440 Carmel Rd.
Charlotte, N.C. 28226 (366-1241)

The Facts

Check us out - we don't need a four A football team, or a graduating class of 500, we've got Country Day! There comes a point in time in everyone's life when he or she must learn the facts of life! Going to school is one of the first. From the day we first entered preschool and were faced with twenty other terrified and tear-stained faces, we learned that at Country Day you were never alone! There was always someone there to share your SAT score, your not quite perfect paper, your skinned knee, or your weekend date! Life's rough, but we got by with a little help from our friends!

Potato chips, popcorn, french fries, and Angelo's chocolate chip cookies add that extra something that can make our day worthwhile! In the morning we check in to check out our social lives, "Who likes whom?", "Who went where?", and "Who did what!?" On any given day, you can hear someone screaming across campus to check up on the latest gossip!

Students stay up until the early hours studying for a test, spend weekends in the library writing a term paper, months preparing for an exam, and endless hours practicing for a play or sport, but students still find time for secretly chewing gum, sneaking food and drinks into the Learning Center, passing notes, sleeping in study hall, and sneaking out to lunch on the day the cafeteria serves spinach!

Could it be that when the Soviets downed the Korean airliner, they accidentally hit half the Senior Lounge, leaving the "Senior Closet" for the rising Seniors! With the smaller size there was less floor space for the usual Senior trash-crumpled homework assignments, empty Mountain Dew cans, and Burger King wrappers, but as 1984 rolled around, C. D. Seniors had to watch out for the local "Big Brother", Upper School Dean, Mr. Ball! Mr. Ball tried his best to keep the lounge clean, but often his pleas were drowned by the blaring of the "Talking Heads"!

Charlotte Country Day School revolves around unique people, who together learn to understand the foreign accents of many foreign students, conquer the mystery of a perfect term paper, and enjoy a Friday evening in Freedom Park dancing to the Spongetones! Check us out!

THIS IS THE LIFE

harlotte Country Day School not only has the finest teachers and handpicked students but it also has the most air conditioned hallways of any school around. The Upper and Lower School campus differs from other schools in one particular way: all of the classrooms open to the outside. There are no hallways. On sunny days, in the spring and fall, students get the advantages of lying out in the sun at lunchtime and free periods, or breathing a little fresh air in between classes. In the winter and on rainy days it can be more of a disadvantage. Since there are no hallways, the underclassmen lockers are outside. Many students have noticed that during the winter months bringing a bag lunch and keeping it in outside lockers until lunch time can result in frozen food. Also, if it is cold or rainy, students have to carry coats around all day and put them on to walk from class to class.

Most students feel that an open-air campus is freer and has a more relaxed atmosphere. What a life!

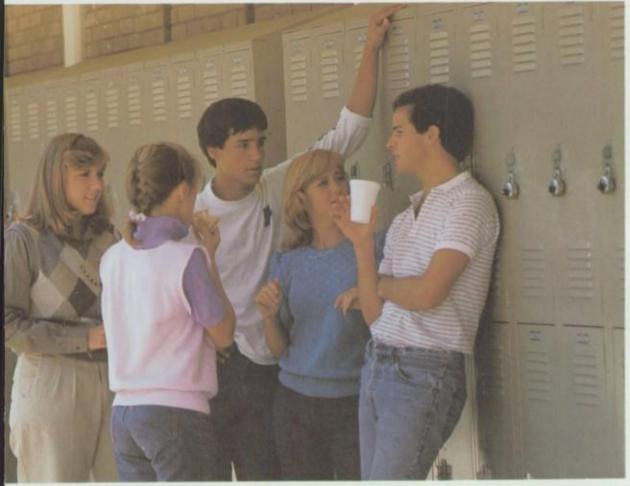

A perfect six! Junior Maria Vasquez is Beau Stoneman's lucky number Six.

he Special Olympics warmed the hearts of every member of the class of '84 that participated in this unique event. This event took place on April 7th and 8th of the 1983 school year. Each day at 9:00 the buses loaded up, and headed toward UNCC. Mr. Ball and Mrs. Erwin, the sponsors, organized and planned the entire event, and were very proud of its success. Despite the rainy weather, the students as well as the athletes managed to have a warm and loving experience. Not only was the day a rewarding undertaking, but the Juniors got to go home early. The Juniors felt that by taking on this project they were able to leave good memories with many people.

Each year on the last day of classes, over five hundred students, parents, and faculty crowd into the Fine Arts Auditorium to watch Upper School students receive awards. Academic awards are given to students based on grade point average and interest in the class. Other awards, including those for fine arts, athletics, service, and character are given as well.

Dean Ball, who issues the awards, considers the awards given on Awards Day tangible ones. He explains, "Anybody who has done more than they thought they could do, perhaps take on a challenge, is going to be awarded . . . these

"I had noooo idea!" was the response of former eighth grader Cammie Hunter after she received the Middle School French Award. Other students such as Jody Morris expressed the same feelings. In Middle School, a coveted award is given to two teachers each year. The "Teacher of the Year" award is voted on by the students and in 1983, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Crawford received it.

And for those who did not receive "tangible" awards this year, there is always the future to become a true winner.

The seemed "decked" gym physically for Christmas Breakfast, however, students, teachers, and parents seemed emotionally set for the December holiday. Aside from traditional decorations, apples played a main role. They represented centerpieces on all the tables, but the most unique apples turned out as ornaments on the Christmas tree in the lobby. Every senior received an apple ornament with his or her name painted on it. OPENING NIGHT ...

Opening night came. The cast frantically looked through their worn scripts. The whispers of the audience could be heard from backstage. A last look at the script, a final makeup check, and the curtain opened. The audience saw a show equaled by few others at Country Day.

Behind the scenes, more than met the eye took place. Endless hours of tiresome practice turned an inexperienced cast into experienced actors and actresses. Along with these many hours of practice, encouragements, criticism and praise came from an experienced director, Mr. Rob Williams. Working on set design and lights took up a major portion of Saturdays for the cast and Mr. Koraly, who helped with set construction. These hours and many frustrated tears showed that the cast and others involved really cared about making "The Curious Savage" a play to remember.

hat a feeling" the Girls' Choir created this year! For the spring performance, they sang songs from the movie "Flashdance". In the Christmas program some of the songs included "Twas the Night Before Christmas", "Snow", and "Christmas Blessing". The Girls' Choir consisted mostly of ninth grade girls.

The Mixed Choir was "mixed" not only in the ages and voices of the singers, but also in the many changes that occured this year. The choir was considerably smaller than it had been in previous years. Another "mix up" or difference in this year's choir was that the students chose the music they sang. Formerly, Mr. Lowry had chosen the music. The students picked more popular music. They sang contemporary Christmas carols for the Christmas program and songs from Neil Diamond, Simon and Garfunkel, and Lionel Ritchie for the spring program. Although the Mixed Choir was smaller this year, the singers liked being able to choose their music.

> The band had a good year, the future looks bright," commented sophomore Sandy Gallamore. The biggest change this year was that there was a full range of instruments. They played classical arrangements which were not scaled for high school bands. Some of their music included "Sleigh Ride" and "Christmas Festival" by Leroy Anderson. There were no seniors in the Band this year, so most everyone will be returning to make next year's band ever better.

he 1984 Senior Follies officially got under way about 8:20 pm on February 2. The spotlight presented a flustered president of the class, Chip Cash, decked out in a tux complete with a huge grin across his face. This fun but disorganized atmosphere was carried throughout the night. Julie Appelbaum, Ariel Morgan of the Dating Game, said "Everyone that participated had a good time and it turned out well for the amount of practice there was." Meggen McKay confirmed this statement by saying, "I just practiced the minute I walked in. I'm doing an improv follie!"

The curtain opened to the Senior Lounge with the faculty skit. Ms. Vellines portrayed Ben Draper complete with an Ozzy t-shirt and Vaurnet sunglasses, Mrs. Felder squeaked in a high voice as Marcelle Gorelick and Ms. Morton attempted to make yearbook announcements as editor Merryman Cassels. Other faculty, Ms. Bingaman, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Terry, Coach Walton, and more enjoyed reminiscing their not-so-recent high school days.

The Dating Game, hosted by Drew Anderson, portrayed a variety of underclassmen and seniors. Generic Brand and Ariel Morgan won a date to Tyvola Road and Billie Jean Normandy went to Carmel Campus with "Gripper". Other popular acts were Rock Lobster, Captain Nemo's Exercises, the Illegal Alien video, and the band Impossible Mission.

The Year 2000 at the Giblin's Farm, a future look at the senior guys, was given by a group of senior girls. Pret Majette became a professional surfer, Ross Hobson recently opened an Alanby's in Grenada and the Reverend Ben Draper healed the still blinded Robert Brand.

All in all, it was a fun evening for the seniors, faculty and the full house audience. Mr. Ball said afterward, "It's a good way to see another side of the seniors". President and MC Chip Cash summed up the whole event by calling it "organized chaos"!

Organized Chaos

Lobsters, sea urchins, dancing girls, and a clam float across the stage as Drew Anderson, Todd Townsend, Steven Vaughn and Lee Bowers dance to Rock Lobster by the B52's.

Down on their knees as the Reverend Ben Draper enters, the crowd will later see a miracle performed as Robert Brands' eyesight is restored.

Relieved and tired at the end of the performance, Karen Underwood and Todd Townsend pose after the conclusion of the Senior Follies.

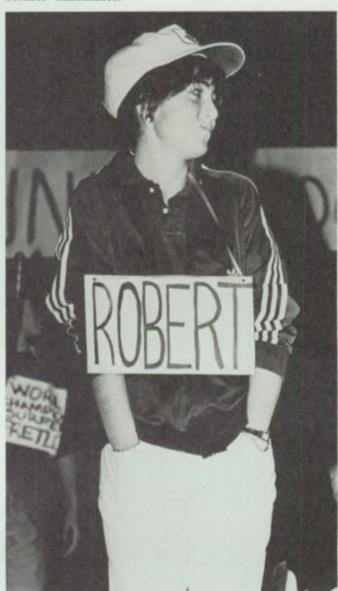

"My two soft, supple ... feet", responds Delia Welton to the question "What is your favorite part of your body?" Gina Rockey, Julie Appelbaum, and Kim Rist were the other lucky contestants in The Dating Game.

In the year 2000, Robert Hobson, alias Shelly Mendel, looks around to see how the years have changed his former classmates.

So long Jane Fonda! Captain Nemo, with the aid of Chip Cash and David Gladstone, conducts his aerobic exercises to liven up the crowd.

IS THERE LIFE AFTER 3:25?

AS STUDENTS WORK, PLAY AND WATCH THE TUBE!

For many students the day did not end at 3:25. Many headed for sports activities, after school jobs, or home to watch the soaps. Many people worked with their fathers, and others worked at restaurants such as Burger King, Dikadees, and T.K Tripps. Senior Sarah Jane Smith, who worked at T.K Tripps as a hostess said, "Working has taught me how to get along with other people."

Although most of the underclassmen do not have after school jobs, many find their afternoons filled with other activities such as sports teams. Sophomore Elizabeth Byne said, "Sports take up a lot of time, but are worth the effort."

"I was suprised by the second half," said Cook. "Enfield has a reputation for coming on strong in the second half."

The Bucs made it 26-14 midway through the third quarter on a 15yard run by Todd Townsend. Townsend carried the ball nine times for 30 yards.

The Bucs' John Graham, who intercepted an Enfield pass early in the game, recovered an Enfield fumble minutes later on the opponent's 18-yard line, setting up a 2yard touchdown run by Yates Pharr two plays later.

In the fourth quarter, David Dixon ran on a sweep play without being touched by a tackler - for a 34-yard touchdown. That made it 40-14.

The final Country Day score came when defensive captain Bo Dickens ran for an 82-yard touchdown on his only carry of the game. Dickens also broke his school record of 181/2 tackles in one game, getting 191/4.

Enfield coach Gerald Rook told parents after the game that his team was outclassed by Country Day, a school of 1,500. Enfield has 300. Rook said Enfield "remains the best in our area"and played a good game.

Elks, the Enfield quarterback, had a solid game, completing eight of 21 passes for 156 yards. Bost, the Bucs' quarterback, completed four of seven passes for 108 yards.

Coach Cook credited defensive players Jim Reay, Steve Vaughn and Scott Weldon for holding the highly reputed rushing game of Enfield Academy.

Morehead Scholarship Nominees

Fifteen high school seniors from Mecklenburg County have been nominated for Morehead Awards.

The awards, financed by the Morehead Foundation, will pay for four years' tuition and othe: expenses at UNC.

They are awarded on the basis of leadership, character, scholastic ability, sports participation and extracurricular activities.

The scholarships are financed by the Morehead Foundation, established in 1945 by John Motley Morehead, a UNC graduate who died in 1965.

The Mecklenburg nominees will compete in interviews next month with nominees from Lincoln, Union, Anson and Richmond counties for district nomination. District nominees will compete against other students from North Carolina and other states. Finalists

Tourtellot Touchdowns Boost Buccaneers Past Christ School

Special Correspondent

ARDEN - Senior quarterback Rich Tourtellot scored four touchdowns, including a 60-yard scorng scramble, rushed for 110 vards and intercepted two passes Saturday in leading Country Day o a 34-20 victory over Christ School of Arden.

Christ School's Tom Willingham caught a 7-yard pass from David Gaines for a touchdown after intercepting a Tourtellot pass on the game's opening play.

The Bucs quickly answered with three successive touchdowns, a 2-yard run by Todd Townsend (who rushed for 80 yards in the game), a 4-yard run by Bo Dickens and an 11-yard dash by Tourtellot.

But a sensational 20-yard touchdown pass from Gaines to a leaping John Turnage in the second quarter kept Christ School within striking distance.

Tourtellot kept the Bucs on the ground, completing three of only six passes for 16 yards, while Country Day amassed 270 yards rushing.

Tourtellot's two second-half interceptions were good for 19 and 7 yards, and knocked the wind out of Christ School. Earlier, sophomore Yates Pharr had a 21-yard runback on an interception.

The Bucs' final touchdown, a 13-yard run by Tourtellot, came / after a drive led by the running of Townsend, Dickens and Andrew Van Sickle. David Dixon made

TRACK: GOSSIP AND GAMES?

Their minds were not filled with thoughts of running but instead filled with latest juicy gossip. Track practice became a social hour. Laura Bruner made use of this idle talk. "I learned a great deal about my classmates and their personalities."

However some of the track members preferred bush patrol to idle talk. If a member was not to be found when it was time to run or receive an award, they could probably be found on bush patrol.

Even though track was a time to play, the girls put in many hours of hard work. Heather Duncan felt that track was "... a lot of hard work." However, that hard work paid off with a fulfilling state meet.

Terri Martin scored the most points, Julie Carder's total was second and Kristin Heid's was third. Their scores were 64, 59, and 52 respectively. The Girls Track Team learned how to combined work and fun.

The J.V. boy's football team ended it season with a stunning victory. The finished with a record of five losses and one win, but some of the impairment wadue to the size of the players and the number of injuries.

This year, the team was smaller that usual. There were twelve seventh graders five eighth graders and fourteen nint graders. Since the team was so little, i had to change its offense. Instead of carrying the ball, the team used passing as its main strategy. Because there were so many seventh graders, a "seventh grade team" was formed consisting of twelve seventh graders and two eightlighters. This team played Latin's seventh-grade team three times and tied them 7-7 in the last game.

Freshmen Henry Adkins, Frank Middleton, John Chapman, and John Brady each sustained major injuries in the first two games.

Henry Adkins was an outstanding player, even though he was out for the first four games. "He was my whole offense - between him and Edison Cassels," remarked Coach Stack. Henry scored sixteen out of twenty-two points in the last game; two touchdowns, two field goals, and one two-point conversion. Al of his touchdown passes scored during the year were thrown by Mark Hosmer.

Several seventh graders got the chance to play in games. Brent Russe frequently started and Glenn Sherryl Chris Brady and B.J. Scheessele played often.

The team had an off season, but who says they won't do better next year?

Top scorer, Henry Adkins, talks with Coach Stack before a game.

ALL THE WAY TO STATE

n November third, the Varsity Soccer team was on the road to Durham, North Carolina for the state tournament. This event was something that the team had been waiting for a long time. The first game was Friday, November fourth, and it was a clear victory for the Bucs when they defeated Durham Academy 1-0. The big challenge came the next day when they faced Ravenscroft, a team from Raleigh. Even though the Bucs lost, they still felt happy. One player had this to say about the tournament, "Who's upset? We're only second in the entire state!"

The 1983 team had a positive attitude, even after losses. Coach, Bob Doherty, who was new to the team this year, was responsible for the team's exceptional attitudes. He filled the team with determination to win, and they did just that. They finished the season with a record of 16-8-1. The Bucs won the conference tournament after stomping Charlotte Latin and Providence Day. They also won the district tournament by defeating Forsyth Country Day and Charlotte Latin. The team was very proud of the position in the state tournament.

The Tradition Continues ...

Even though the J.V. Soccer team lost many of its players to the Varsity team, it did not affect their season. Continuing the tradition for the third consecutive year, they remained undefeated in conference games. David Silverman led the team with eleven goals.

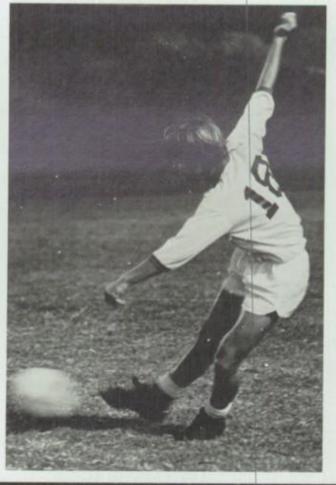

Led by David Silverman, Perry Giffen, Charlie Hondros, David Cohen, Eric Heid, and Chris Pugh, the team had decisive victories over Charlotte Latin and Providence Day. The J.V. soccer team had a very successful season; all but one of their losses were to a public school.

WORKING HARD; HAVING FUN

hen the J.V. Field Hockey Team Members were asked why they play field hockey, they responded in unison, "It's fun." 13 of the players are in 7th and 8th grade.
These players don't have the privilege of exemption from P.E. for playing hockey. The girls complain about this requirement to attend gym but it doesn't change their decision to play field hockey.

The most memorable game in Jennifer Ferro's opinion was "The Monkey Business Game." During one game Monkey Business paid a visit to Bonnie Harris. Her mother, who was responsible for the unexpected surprise, wrote "Only 365 more days till YOU can drive the carpool."

Kathy Brookshire's favorite part of playing on the team was the trip to Durham. There was plenty of time for socializing on the bus, but the highlight of the trip was beating Durham Academy. According to Coach Leesa Pepper, the girls looked forward to the Durham Game because it was the longest trip of the year, and the outcome was an anticipated win.

Coach Pepper summed up the season when she said that the most impressive quality of the players was "The way they worked together".

A Real Team

What makes a real team? If a real team is one on which every member contributes to the good of the team as a whole, then the Varsity Volleyball team was a real team, indeed!

Head Coach Susie Pignetti and Assistant Coach Pat McKee applauded the team members for their spirit and willingness to help each other. Several times the players relied on confidence in each other and friendly, but honest advice to come from behind and win. CCDS was undefeated in the conference and dropped only one in-state match. Kathryn Anderson, Emily Ayscue, and Julie Brittain were voted to the CISSA first team, and Julie Brittain and Maria Vasquez earned places on the East Cooper All-tournament team. Skill, as well as comraderie helped to guide the team. After winning the district tournament, the team tied for third place in the state tournament.

At the end of the season, Ellen Ranson received the Coaches Award for her outstanding contributions to the team, on and off the court. Sandee Smith earned the Most Improved Award for her remarkable gains in her first year of volleyball. But, each player, no matter what her skill level, contributed to the unity and comraderie which made this team a real team.

he JV Volleyball team had an up and down season. With only one returning player, even hard work could not always outweigh inconsistency.

According to Freshman Lisa Pignetti, the highlight of the season was hosting the JV Play Day. She explained that all of the conference teams came to the Carmel Campus where they were broken down into new teams on which no more than two players could be from the same original team. "There was no winner, but it was fun, just the same."

At the close of the season, Lisa Pignetti and Elizabeth Dixon were voted Most Valuable Player and Most Improved Player. In the words of Coach Mills, the team was "a congenial group of people" who "worked well together."

Hard Work Paid Off!

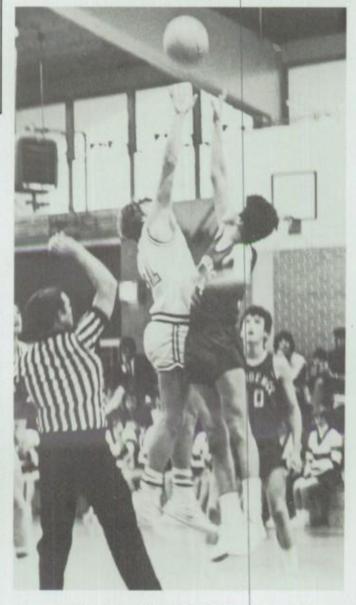

Hard work and well-balanced talent produced a season of twelve wins and six losses for the Junior Varsity boys' basketball team. They were led by six Sophomores and two outstanding Freshmen. The Sophomores included Steven Klein, Brent Lane, Yates Pharr, Beau Stoneman, Danny Meltsner, and Taylor Welton, and the Freshmen were Connor Bost and Parker Drew. Coach Kevin Daly showed his pleasure for the team when he commented "I've been here three years and they are the hardest working group I've had in those years."

Another hard-working team was the Junior High boys' basket-ball team. Much effort showed in their record of six wins and seven losses. They finished the season second in the Conference, behind Providence Day.

As proved by these two teams, hard work pays off!

Hard Work; Good Times

hat goes on in the locker room, behind the scenes, often tells as much about a team as game play. Energetic chatter and friendly talk filled the locker room before each Girls Varsity Basketball practice and game. While some teams struggle with off-the-court quarrels, this team held together in the bad times and strengthened during the good times. Junior Sandee Smith commented, "We have a good time together."

Some of the closeness within the team surely resulted from Coach Frosch's willingness to talk individually with the players, as well as her ability to prod players into contributing to the good of the whole team. Her "team before I" philosophy consistently won respect and hard work from the team members. That hard work paid off in the long sought victory over Latin at the end of the season.

Senior Mary Brand was voted onto the all-conference team, suggesting that talent, as well as hard work, characterized the CD team. Mary was also voted Most Valuable Player and Elizabeth Byne was voted Most Improved. Through good times and bad times, the Girl's Varsity Basketball Team members held together for a tough season.

The J.V. Girls' Basketball team ended the season "even-steven" with seven wins and seven losses.

Team captain Graham Shannonhouse led the girls with ninetynine points and was voted most valuable player. Cindy Tice, a newcomer to the team, had the most rebounds with sixty-four.

Out of the seven successful games, the biggest win was over St. Gabriels by more than twenty points.

A new twist was added to the games this year: each contest was dedicated to a different player on the team, giving the girls incentive to win for a teammate.

The team sported many new players including Pebbles Glenn who was named the most improved player for the season. "It was a young team, and good," reported Ms. Mills, "I have high expectations for next year."

fter ending the season with a record 14 and 2, the wrestling team stood well in the final tournament. John Hosmer, Will Allen, Hayes Harris, Andy Baron and Brian Butler all placed first in the tournament with the rest of the team following close behind. These wins were partly a result of the energy absorbed at the annual breakfast - before - the tournament prepared by Kim Stack, wife of coach Rick Stack, and managers Jenna Randolph and Paige Ford. When asked about the season, Coach Stack said," I am pleased with the results and efforts of the boys."

Dance The Might

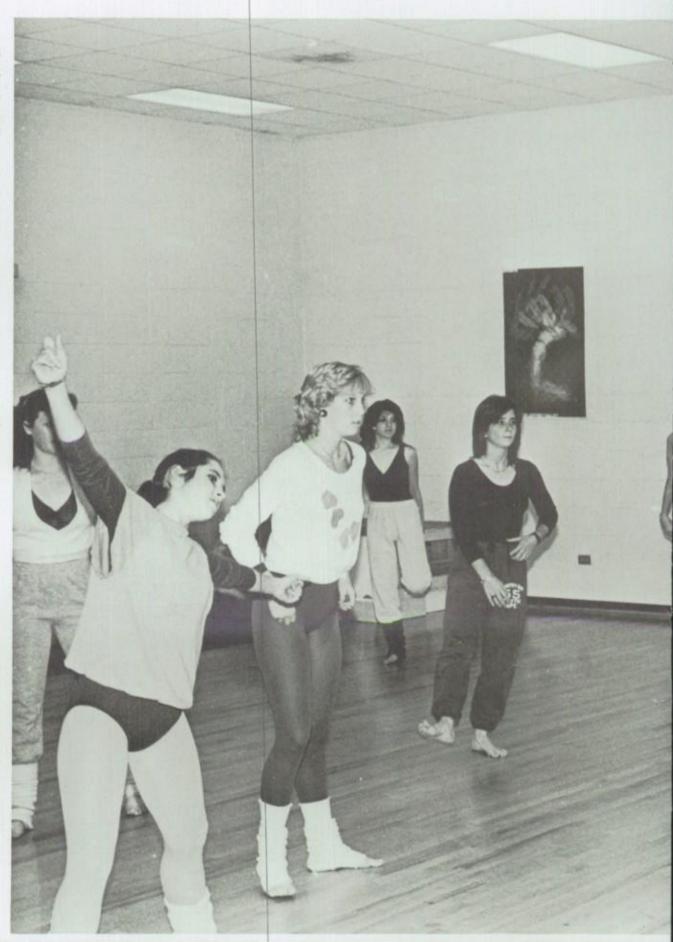

The Dance Company was probably the most unusual team at Country Day. A group of eleven students got together after school, Monday through Thursday, from 3:30 until 5:30 and danced, danced, danced! An Evening of Dance, which was on March 30th and 31st, was the result of three months of hard work.

The group was "coached" by Mayreese Koraly and Melissa Pope. Krissie Hein, Micki Upchurch, and Rob Williams contributed to the choreographing of the dances. "We had a group of really hard workers who handled themselves responsibly and professionally," reported Ms. Pope.

To stay in shape, the group had a class once a week which started off with a warm-up, and continued with technique and movement provement. Even before the "season" began, the students got a taste of working in a group and helping each other. Tryouts involved getting instructions from the judges as a group and performing together. When the practices started, they learned to work "independently as a group". Added Ms. Pope, "If one member has a problem, she will go to another member to get help in working it out."

The most original team in the Country Day sports family had an interesting season that separated it from the rest of the crowd.

Warmup to the beat of a different drum. Ms. Pope and the rest of the Dance Company limber up before starting practice.

Spreading Good Cheer!

More cheerleaders equals more cheer. This year the number of cheerleaders was increased from ten to fourteen. This allowed the cheerleaders to support more Varsity athletic teams than ever before. These include football, basketball, field hockey, volleyball, and wrestling. They supported these teams by decorating team locker rooms, giving the players cookies, and, of course, cheering. One of the more original spirit boosters was decorated pillow cases for the soccer team.

The money to support these teams was raised through monthly fundraisers. The most successful fundraiser was a cheerleading clinic for children ages 5 through 13. They raised a total of 200 dollars. After the children had learned the cheers, they performed them for their parents.

To improve their own skills, the girls took a cheering retreat in the mountains. Margaret Martin, one of the cheerleaders, provided lodging at her house in Montreat. Each day they hiked to a small plateau and practiced. Each girl was responsible for one meal. However, Mrs. Mendel and Mrs. Erwin arrived with emergency rations of cakes, cookies, and other goodies.

The cheerleaders had a unique quality of devotion. Kimberly Humphreys, who was unable to cheer during part of the season because of a series of unfortunate accidents, expressed this devotion when she said "I really love cheering, and when I couldn't do it, I missed it."

CHEER ENERGY

I his year, the JV Cheerleading Squad had a unique quality: these seven girls had worked together before as a unit in the Middle School. Coach Karen Thompson described the group: "Their cheering voices mesh in a way that they sound like one massive voice with tons of energy and enthusiasm."

Over the summer, the girls attended the International Cheerleading Foundation Cheerleading Camp on the Davidson campus. For four days, they had a chance to work together, which would later "enable them to work as a 'total unit' to promote school spirit."

This year's squad was reduced by four persons. New uniforms, which matched the Varsity Squad, were ordered to enable the two squads to come together uniformly when necessary. Bake sales and doughnut sales served as the group's fund raising activities.

Since most of the girls were not old enough to drive, Coach Thompson made it possible for them to practice 8th period instead of after school. As their coach, she commented, "This is an excellent group of girls to work with this year."

Over on the Carmel Campus existed another cheerleading squad — the Junior High Cheerleaders. They promoted school spirit through their numerous fundraisers. These included Spirit Week, which consisted of Punk Day, Twin Day, Dressy Day, Spirit Day, and Tacky Day, doughnut sales, bake sales, and a car wash. The Squad held three pep rallies, a dance, and a "Mr. Leg's contest. The girls also sent a Balloon-A-Gram.

The cheerleaders felt their greatest strength was team work and that there were "no big weaknesses". Captain Simmons Long claimed that the highlights of the year were their "pom-pom routines and overall spirit".

GOING THAT EXTRA STEP

Jountry Day has always taken ide in doing more to allow students learn and to get better at what they rive for. Part of this has been complished by offering learning ps for students belonging to clubs d organizations, so that they can arn more about the subjects that terest them.

Mrs. Cobb's Latin club took a ip to Durham on December 7th. hile they were there, they toured e Duke University chapel and ake's very own Historical museum. he museum contained a Greek and gyptian artifact collection.

In mid-August, Mrs. Bingaman, e yearbook advisor, her editing crew, and a yearbook photographer traveled to Hemlock Haven, Virginia for a three day workshop on yearbook production and photography. The workshop had an outstanding staff including Nancy Paterson, who has taught many workshops on yearbook production. The editors had lessons covering every aspect of a quality yearbook. They also made all decisions about the cover and the content of the book. Mrs. Bingaman and yearbook photographer Wendy Hart participated in the photography workshop. The yearbook workshop was so helpful that the staff budgets their funds so they can attend a good workshop every summer. Mrs. Bingaman commented, "It was the most outstanding experience we've ever had." Emily Ayscue added, "It was an intense learning experience from which we all benefitted. It was fun, too!"

Every Sunday, during the months of January, February and March, Mrs. Caldwell helps prepare her math contestants for future math contests. During the training sessions, students work on accuracy and speed by doing written and oral work. They review as well as look ahead to learn how to do difficult, more complex problems in the areas of Algebra I, Algebra II, Geometry and Comprehensive. The students compete in contests at Charleston, U.N.C.C., Wingate, Appalachian and Furman. Mrs. Caldwell has help from Mr. Timson and Mrs. Abernethy in the areas of Algebra I and II.

or many of the CCDS clubs, service has been one of the best ways that each organization has been able to help its school and community. Not only is service rewarding to the students, but it also creates a natural bond between life in and outside of school. Throughout this past year, several clubs have sponsored Blood Drives, as well as the traditional Christmas families. Aquilifer donated baked goods to the Soup Kitchen, and provided an Aid Station for the Charlotte Observer Marathon. A new Cross-Country Track was built for the Middle School by the Spanish Club; the Student Council held a Halloween party for the kids at the Children's Hospital, as well as gave $150 dollars to the Empty Stocking Fund. In addition, the N.H.S., Math, and Computer Clubs have all equipped CCDS with excellent tutoring programs. Although these projects only name a few. they clearly represent the service oriented motives of many of the CCDS clubs and organizations.

n addition to the usual bake sales, carnation days, and candy cane sales, there were several outstanding fundraisers this year.

The French Club raised money with croissant sales. The Math Club sponsored an aluminum can collection for recycling. They raised about forty dollars from this project. Aquilifer, the girls' service club, won a hundred dollars for the best aide station of the Observer Marathon. They donated fifty dollars of this prize to the Shelley McConnell Liver Transplant Fund.

The class fundraisers were very successful this year. The Freshman class held a "slave day". They auctioned ninth graders to serve as slaves for upperclassmen for one day. The highest price paid for a "slave" was twenty dollars for Conner Bost. The Sophomore class raised twenty-four hundred dollars from a fruit sale. They sold grapefruit and oranges from Texas. To help cover the Junior/Senior prom expenses, the Junior class raised about twenty-three hundred dollars from a poinsettia sale.

These club funds were used for all kinds of purposes ... field trips, class trips, dances, and other extra-curricular activities.

So Tempting! Chris Elliot, Bobby Boulware, and Sandy Knox entice Karen Thompson with Junior class baked goods.

A just reward. After playing all summer, King Grasshopper, Senior, Gibby Heilman, has no food or shelter for the winter.

CCDS Goes International

Language Day was handled quite differently this year from previously. The competition between the language clubs was eliminated because the faculty felt that the competition promoted too much rivalry.

The clubs did not compete in a volleyball game this year, because the Board of Directors as well as the language department members felt that it had nothing to do with each specific language.

However, some students and teachers felt that when the competition was eliminated, the enthusiasm was lost. Francine Terrell believed, "It was not as exciting this year because there was not a competition." Mr. Robinson felt that the skits this year were very good but that there was a lack of enthusiasm. Next year he hopes to restore some of the enthusiasm without promoting excessive competition.

This year the International Club joined the French, Spanish, and Latin Clubs in the festivities. Each club performed a skit in its native language.

At the end of the program all the clubs came together to sing "America the Beautiful". The Language Department does not believe that the competition will be brought back next year; however, they hope some of the enthusiasm will return.

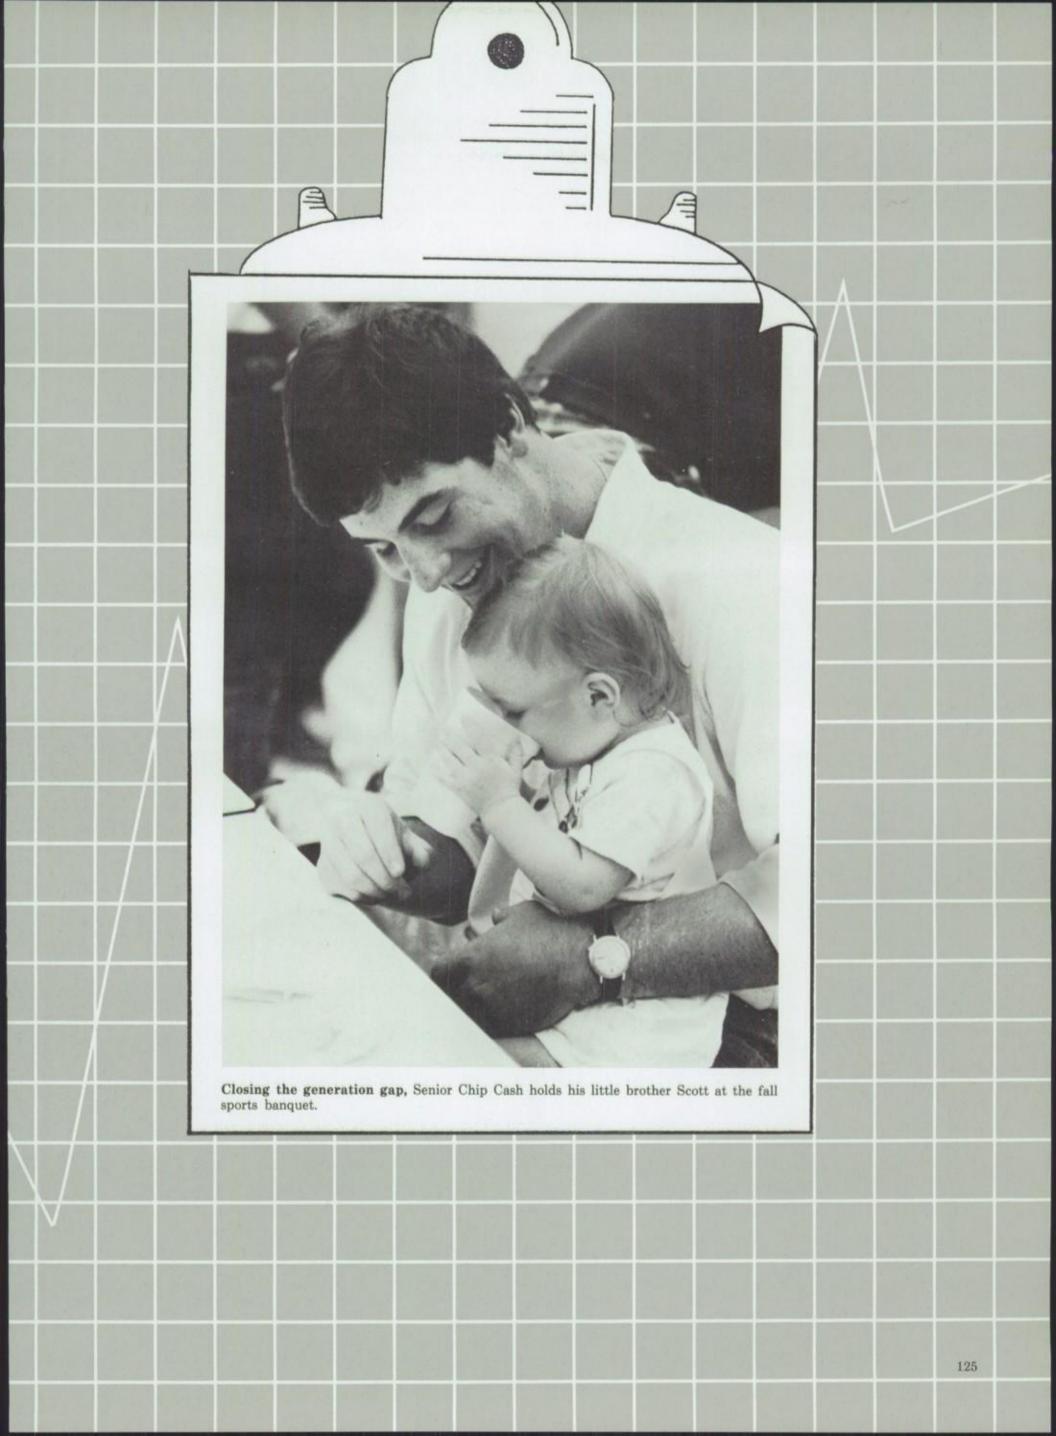

Living it up: The King Grasshopper, senior, Gibby Heilman, is admired by his lady grasshoppers, Kathryn Anderson and Kristy Brown.

Reving enthusiasm, the Varsity cheerleader get the Upper School psyched for Spirit Week!

Since we are surrounded by such a great cloud of witnesses, let us throw off everything that hinders, as well as the sin that so easily entangles, and let us run with patience and perseverance the race that is marked out for us. Let us fix our eyes upon Jesus, the author and the perfector of our faith.- Hebrews 12:1,2

As a young kid beginning school I remember my pet dog, best friends, and the secret wish at Christmas

While a teenager I remember friends from Carmel Academy who helped me to grow and made me realize we cannot always have everything

Yet being sixteen I recall learning how to drive my sports car and wondering if I would ever learn not to let out the clutch without giving it gas. Now seventeen and a senior I have made new friends and have a boyfriend at my side to make this year special and a prize memory.

My only wish if it comes true Would be to spend my life with you I give my heart and all my love If you will only love me too ... PS-Edie Rabbitt

There are times in everyone's life when we feel hurt or alone, but I feel that these times when we feel lost and all around us seems to be falling apart, are really bridges of growth.

We struggle and try to recapture the security of what was, but, almost in spite of ourselves, we emerge on the other side with a new understanding, a new awareness, a new strength.

It is almost as though we must go through the pain and struggle in order to grow and reach new heights.-Sue Mitchell

Class of '85 this year was that of every junior class: to execute a prom that exceeded all before. The Grade Council attended several band showcases at Park Center but none of those bands suited the majority of the Juniors' and Seniors' "desired music" as indicated in a poll. As a last resort, three members of the class, Robert Mitchener, John Collias, and Bruce Walker drove to Duke University to attend a dance at the Moose Lodge sponsored by the Delta Tai Delta Fraternity House and discovered "the band!" In addition to finding a band, the entire class had to agree on a theme. Juniors voted to leap the wall to the Orient after considering "Heaven" and "Jungle" as other possibilities.

In the past, money raisers for the Junior-Senior prom have been last-minute frantic bake sales in an all-out effort to make enough money to provide an exciting night.

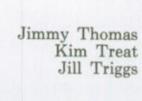

With careful planning, the 1983-'84 Sophomore class raised enough money by selling Texas fruit to pay for a large portion of the 1985 prom.

Grade-coordinator Ms. Mills set an individual quota of ten boxes of fruit per student. Many students reached this goal, some surpassed it, and some did not even come close to it. Even with the few "bad salesmen," the Sophomore class reached their goal and proved the fruit sale successful.

They did such things as addressing envelopes, answering telephones, and eventually "going on the air" during the W.T.V.I. Kids Club Telethon.

The long term committment made this service project very important to the freshman class.

SLAVES ... FOR A DAY!

Freshmen for sale! That was the call on December second when freshmen class members were auctioned to 10th, 11th, and 12th graders. This unusual sale helped to raise money for the freshmen class.

Freshman auctioneer Banks McClintock sold the slaves to the highest bidders. On December ninth the slaves had to do literally whatever their buyers wanted them to do during lunch and in between classes. The only real rule was that the buyers were responsible for their slaves' actions. Therefore, the slaves were not asked to do anything too unreasonable.

Slave day was just one of the many events that helped the freshmen class to raise money and have fun at the same time.

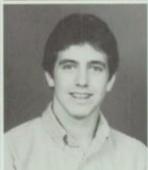

"Do I have two dollars?" Auctioneer Banks McClintock takes bids from upper schoolers interested in buying "slaves" on Slave Day. The highest bid for a slave was $20.00.

WE HAVE GOT THE MOST!

Spirit, spirit! This is just what the freshmen class had this year! After taking the spirit week title from the juniors (who have won since their freshmen year) the ninth grade felt proud and worthy. Each student contributed to the success by attending the games during spirit week, yelling the loudest during pep rallies, and creating posters and signs. Freshman Anna Walsh was the head of the spirit week committee and organized the various plans that enabled the freshmen to win the title.

Although the ninth graders did not get to miss a day of school as did winners in previous years, they did receive Cokes and doughnuts during their free periods one morning. But, the real prize was the honor of knowing that they had won!

"Go Freshman!" Freshmen participate in spirit week by cheering at the Faculty Volleyball game.

he eighth grade is an exceptionally spirited grade. One way in which they show their spirit is by having a pep club. This is for spirited members of their class. They had a party in the gym of the Carmel campus at the beginning of this year for all the members of the pep club with music and an air band contest. The members of the winning air band each received an album. There was a male homecoming court nominated just for the fun of it. The four guys from the eighth grade that were nominated

M&M SALE

To raise money for dances and for the student council, the seventh and eighth graders took the task of selling boxes of M&M's. Each of the seventh and eighth graders received ten boxes of M&M's, five peanut and plain. There was a date assigned when all ten boxes would have to be sold. Anyone that reached this goal received an ice cream sundae.

Helping the Needy

In order for the eighth graders to show their concern for the community, they collected money for Doc. Terry, a man whose house burned down. Students raised money by holding bake sales and donating one dollar or more each. This project included fellow middle and upper school students. This money was collected by homerooms and a check was presented to one of Doc. Terry's friends. Television coverage of this heart-warming experience aroused public awareness.

SCHOOL-IN-THE-WOODS

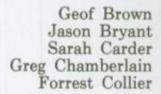

The eighth graders took a trip to Camp Thunderbird in September for Schoolin-the-Woods. Responsible decision-making was the theme of their experience. "The big thing this year was that the eighth graders got to go sailing," said Vanessa Fadial. Nightime activities included a dance with tapes played by teachers. The eighth graders learned how to write checks and balance a checking account. Another of their activities included assigned locations to find using a compass. This experience succeeded in giving the eighth graders an insight to life beyond school.

Funds for Fun

During the fall term, the seventh grade was faced with the task of raising money. So, they had an M & M sale. Each student received ten boxes of M & Ms, plain and peanut. Those who sold all of their boxes were rewarded with an ice cream party. These profits paid for dances as well as other events outside of the regular school curriculum.

Who Waits for Summer?

On Monday, October 3, the seventh grade class headed out to Camp Thunderbird to experience School-In-The-Woods. Upon arrival at the camp, students were assigned to cabins and groups in which they were to stay during the three day period of activities and learning. During the trip, the students had a dance, went canoeing, rode the zipwire, had discussions on foreign culture, and experimented with video work. They also built kites and had a contest to see whose kite would fly the longest. The weary students arrived home on Thursday, October 6, from an event that would be long remembered.

Showing her superb balance and form, Susan Rosser walks the rope course at School-In-The-Woods.

Anxious to row on the lake, the seventh graders get ready to go canoeing. The crewmen are Deborah Helms, Elizabeth Abrams, Stacie Craddock, Susan Rosser, Chisolm Woodson, and Rich Gehron.

AFRICAN ADVENTURE

Chool-in-the-Woods was planned earlier in the year than in past years. Carol Morris, the sixth grade coordinator, felt that this was an advantage because it provided a casual atmosphere where the sixth graders could "get to see everybody again and meet new people." The theme of school-in-the-woods this year was Africa. This theme was carried through in many activities. African dancers performed for the class. According to Mrs. Morris, the performance was "somewhat of a disappointment because it was too short."

They also made African masks. One of the most popular activities was tie-dying. Leigh Ann Hawkins especially enjoyed tie-dying because she liked the blue shirt she made. On the whole, school-in-the-woods was "better than last year" according the Wendy Jacobs.

Hard at work, Claire Wood and Vivian Bechtler study their Junior Scholastic.

SPIRITED SIXTH

n the middle school campus, for the past three years, Pat McKee sponsored a pep club. The majority of the members were 6th graders, although a few of the members were 7th and 8th graders. The pep club decorated the teams' buses before trips and baked cupcakes for the teams' players. The pep club sponsored a pep club party. There was a Buccaneer court, music and air band exhibitions. The pep club played a very active part in spirit on the middle school campus.

Activities filled the year for the Fourth Grade. They participated in many exciting activities, the most special being a trip to our state capital, Raleigh, N.C. Leaving about 6:00 A.M., they traveled by Trailways bus and spent the entire day in the city. They visited the Governor's Mansion, the Art Museum, the Capitol Building, and the Museum of History.

In December, they presented a Christmas program focused on the December traditions in North Carolina. They studied the traditions from the English, French, Moravian, and African cultures. They sang carols, spirituals, and even choreographed their own dance. Senior Shelly Mendel taught the fourth graders a Jewish dance.

Another event in the Fourth Grade was a field trip to the Asheboro zoo. They spent the whole day observing the many attractions.

Also, each student prepared a speech for the traditional speech contest. Many hours of preparation were spent memorizing these speeches. The usual nervousness and stage-fright were felt by the Fourth Graders.

With 5 Fourth Grade sections, the grade activities helped to maintain unity and closeness.

rs. Pierce's class had flag pole duty this year. Every morning and afternoon the students were responsible for raising and lowering American flag on the Cannon Campus.

Another detail about this class was the students' love of pigs! They had posters and pictures of pigs hanging on the classroom walls, presenting what seemed to be a theme of Pierce's Priceless Possessions.

Sellers' Sensational Students

Sellers' Sensational Students were a unique class of Fourth Graders. They participated in many unusual and educational activities. One of these was a "Garfield Excuse Book". Garfield was a member of their class and the keeper of the excuse book. "Students entered excuses in this book that even Garfield can't believe!" said teacher Janie Sellers.

Another activity that was unique to this class was the "Read-In". Every Thursday, for 30 minutes, there was a silent, relaxed time for reading only. During this time, the students could lie on the heaters, stretch out on the floor, prop feet on desks, or sit however they were most comfortable.

The class' grademother, Mrs. Sawyer, proved to be a favorite aspect of the year. As the students commented "No one could have a better grademother than we do. She is always bringing us surprises!" She made their fourth grade year a special one.

The best gift given to Mrs. Sellers' fourth grade class was their grademother, Mrs. Sawyer.

Last November the Kindergarten class took on a very exciting and rewarding task. They planted bulbs around two trees facing Fairview Road. The children decided to plant the bulbs not only for fun, but to beautify the Lower School side of Cannon campus. This spring the bulbs bloomed into lovely daffodils. The kindergarten class started a tradition for all the classes to follow.

"You've Come A Long Way Baby!"

For many CCDS teachers, work doesn't end at 3:30 p.m. Within the last year or so, Julie Shaw, Marlene Jacoby, Mayreese Koraly, and Marsha Newton-Graham have had children. When asked what their children do during the school day, many teachers said that they had babysitters, friends, or neighbors who came into their homes and took care of their children, while others put their infants in a day-care program.

Therefore, unlike popular belief, many teachers' lives DO go beyond the classroom setting!

UNITY IN DIVERSITY ...

September 24th was the long-awaited day in which 110 faculty and administrative personnel from the Lower, Middle, and Upper Schools, gathered together at the Howard Johnson's motel in North Myrtle Beach. It was a time for "Growth and Renewal," as well as an opportunity to share and discuss each other's thoughts and ideas. The central theme of the retreat was "Community; Different Styles, Same Goals."

The conference began with the address of Dr. Cynthia Tyson, Vice President of Academic Affairs at Queens College. She spoke on the values of an academic community and the importance of respecting diversity in teaching and learning styles.

By the end of the weekend, the faculty members were able to identify and appreciate the differences found in the CCDS school community, as well as to analyze their own individual preferences in style and teaching methods.

R & R. As far as Ed Kelly, Cynthia Kratt, Helena Rea, Anne Nash, Catherine Deal, and Alene Lambert are concerned, rest and relaxation are part of the beach retreat.

Faculty vs. Varsity

In October, the girls' Varsity Volleyball team faced one of their toughest opponents all year, the faculty volleyball team. Deborah Mills, Garry Sullivan, Rhea Caldwell, Mary Karen Vellines, Stan Fri, Walter Lockhart, Betsy Howard, Ed Walton, and David Offill, just to name a few, gave it their all in this exciting match. The cheerleaders, Nancy Cox, Florence Chapman, and John Cook cheered the team on to an even tie with the Varsity. The spikes of Richard Terry and Gil Webb together with Ed Kelly's historical serve that scored six consecutive points made them valuable players. Richard Terry modestly stated, "We were awesome." He went on to add, "It was a lot of fun" the students got to see a side of us they never had before."

Playing Nurse. Upper School nurse Shirley Laye takes sophomore Kristi Hamel's temperature.

The Great Escape

At Country Day, the health office was a popular place to be, whether you were really sick or just trying to get out of a test next period! Nurse Shirley Laye at the Cannon Campus and Nancy Lipscomb at Carmel were always kept busy. They both agreed that Mondays were by far the busiest day of the week. "They just can't make it on Mondays," stated Ms. Lipscomb, "They're worn out after the weekend!" This year, January was a heavy month for sickness, with the flu and other viruses going around. On one day in January, fifty students from the Lower and Upper School came to the nurse's office starting at 8:30 in the morning and continuing until 3:10 p.m.

The most common complaints Lower schoolers brought to the nurse were skinned knees and elbows. Middle schoolers plained of headaches and sore throats. Headaches were also the most frequent complaint of students and teachers in the Upper School. Both nurses cited fractures, head injuries, and cuts requiring stitches as the most severe problems they had to deal with.

Nurse Shirley Laye remembered two Lower Schoolers who came to her with unusual problems. One little boy had a splinter in his derriere. Another came in with a loose tooth hanging by a thread, and when Ms. Laye asked him if he wanted her to pull it, he said "You don't have any Band-Aids for your mouth to hold a tooth back in, do you?"

he pressure builds while Greg Tassos tries to think of the next answer to his test.

TESTING 1, 2, 3 ... TESTING

From admission tests to college boards, Country Day students are always being tested. Prospective kindergarten students were tested and interviewed at the age of 4 or 5. In addition to taking an intelligence test, the children were given a visual exam (looking at and interpreting pictures) and were asked to hop and skip to test their motor skills. Their maturity and development were evaluated in interviews. In addition to being asked questions like "Where is your elbow?" and "How are a clock and a calendar alike?", some students were asked who Christopher Columbus was. Jacqui Bivens, who works in the admissions office, told of one little boy's response to that question. According to Ms. Bivens, after being taken to his interview by John Briggs, the Lower School guidance counselor, the little boy said, "Sure, I know who Columbus is, he's the man that just brought me downstairs." Older children coming to Country Day were required to take ERB tests and were interviewed by a faculty member. In some cases, the prospective students were interviewed by the Dean.

This year test calendars were posted in the snack bar and the faculty lounge. This method, sponsored by the Student Council, ensured that Upper School students had no more than two major tests a day. Student Council President Henry Pharr commented on the effectiveness of this system: "This new calendar will provide better communication between the students and the teachers, in the event that a test conflict arises."

The State of North Carolina requires standardized testing in grades 1, 2, 3, 6, 9 and 11. Country Day chooses to give the ERB test because it offers a more fair comparison for students at Country Day. When a student reaches his Junior year he is required to take the PSAT to prepare him for the SAT to be taken toward the end of his Junior year and the beginning of his Senior year.

From admission tests to college boards, students become accustomed to being tested. When they graduate from Country Day they will be prepared to handle the pressure of college future careers!

Intense concentration is required while taking a French III test. Note Trisha Grode's tension relieving bubble. She is accompanied by Sandy Gallamore, Allison Moss and Maria Hondros.

special aspect of the students at Country Day was their willingness to help others. Walking across campus, it wasn't rare to find one student helping another. Whether close friends or not, students were always willing to help their buddies. Many programs were set up so students could aid students, and even help teachers. This year the seniors were able to proctor study hall so that they could practice responsibility and take a load off the teachers. The seniors decided to do this to show their leadership skills. Another way students assisted other students was tutoring. If a student was having trouble in a class, the teacher would recommend a student tutor. volunteered Students because they wanted to help their friends.

Some students worked with the Lower School in programs such as French Internship. This year Gina Rockey helped as an aide for Monsieur Loiseau, the Lower School French teacher. The first half of the term she observed a first grade class, and the second half she taught the class herself.

Students helping other students at Country Day was just another aspect that made the school so special.

C.D. AROUND THE WORLD

Through students and faculty, the International program at Country Day was very successful in 1983-84.

Students such as International Club president Barbara Hoecklin used their knowledge and experiences of other countries to help C.D. give a warm welcome to International students. Advisor to the International club, Mme. Shumake stated, "The International club, although it hasn't grown very big yet, gives students with English as a second language a chance to understand American high school life." The International Club did such things as read the daily bulletins to keep up on daily events of Country Day and Charlotte. Other than by establishing the International Club, Country Day helped foreign students by providing a good tutoring program for non-English speakers.

For Upper Schoolers who were interested in learning about other countries, Country Day made available such programs as "School Year Abroad" and "Woodberry Forest in Britain".

Mr. Lockhart, co-ordinator of the International program, spoke of Country Day's "foreign affairs": "C.D.'s International program is good because we are really making an effort and we can see results."

t's just for fun," chided Mary Todd, eferring to the Shakespeare evening classes she aught to an eclectic group of people. Her articipants were mostly parents and faculty, though some chose this program after stening to Todd speak on Shakespeare in the mmunity. In her ninth set of courses, Mrs. odd began her once a week sessions with a cture on Shakespeare's background and life. Line by line," the group read one of the asterpiece plays, she said, and then Country ay treated them to the video taped movie ersion.

Country Day provided several other pordinate programs, as well. Students from the ower and Middle Schools, which closed earlier can the Upper School, remained at school for variety of activities. What started four years so with only a handful of students staying ntil 3:30 with Miss Nash and Mrs. Richardson as blossomed into twenty-five to thirty udents remaining until 5:30. This year the roup was so large that it branched into three roups. Country Day parent Kay Brennan oked after the Kindergarteners, whose ternoons were filled with art projects such as making snowflakes and circus figures, watching movies, and the most popular, playing charades. The Mile Club was for all the Kindergarteners who jogged after school. After they accumulated twenty-five miles, they each received two wristbands. "It's good for their muscles and hearts," emphasized Mrs. Brennan after the "munchkins" finished jogging on a cold afternoon. One of the highlights of an afterschool Kindergarteners' week was receiving a Happygram: "If you jogged a mile, read a book, or did a good deed, you got one," stated Mrs. Brennan. Life, Monopoly, and Battleship were several of the games played by the afterschool students from grades 1 through 3, who were looked over by Miss Nash. Right after school was dismissed, the kids had a recess period to disperse some of their energy. After the recess was homework time, which ended with juice and cookies. Monopoly especially pleased the kids on those rainy days. For older students who had to remain after school, Mr. Gerard Loiseau emphasized homework first to his "children" who stayed in the Learning Center most of the time. nundred copies of the 1984 Postscript hit the oresses in Marceline, Missouri, base of the Walsworth Publishing Company. Our Walsworth ales representative was the ever-patient Mr. Wayne Wolfe. Eight and ten point Century type filled aptions and copy, while headlines ranged from ighteen to seventy-two point type in a variety of rints. The paper was stock enamel.

The term Postscript is derived from the latin vord postscriptum and means: after-writing or dditional information. After great debate, the heme, "The Annual Check Up" was developed heme speaks for itself.

heck it out! This year thirteen Carolina. The 1983 Postscript finished in third place for overall quality and in second place in the photographic division.

Many changes occurred in Postscript this year. With the addition of the Apple IIe word processor, all copy was stored, corrected, and printed, saving hours of fighting over the typewriter. The use of rule lines, large initial letters in copy, and bold-faced lead-ins for captions were added as well. The largest addition to the Postscript was the Minimag, which was filled with current events and facts.

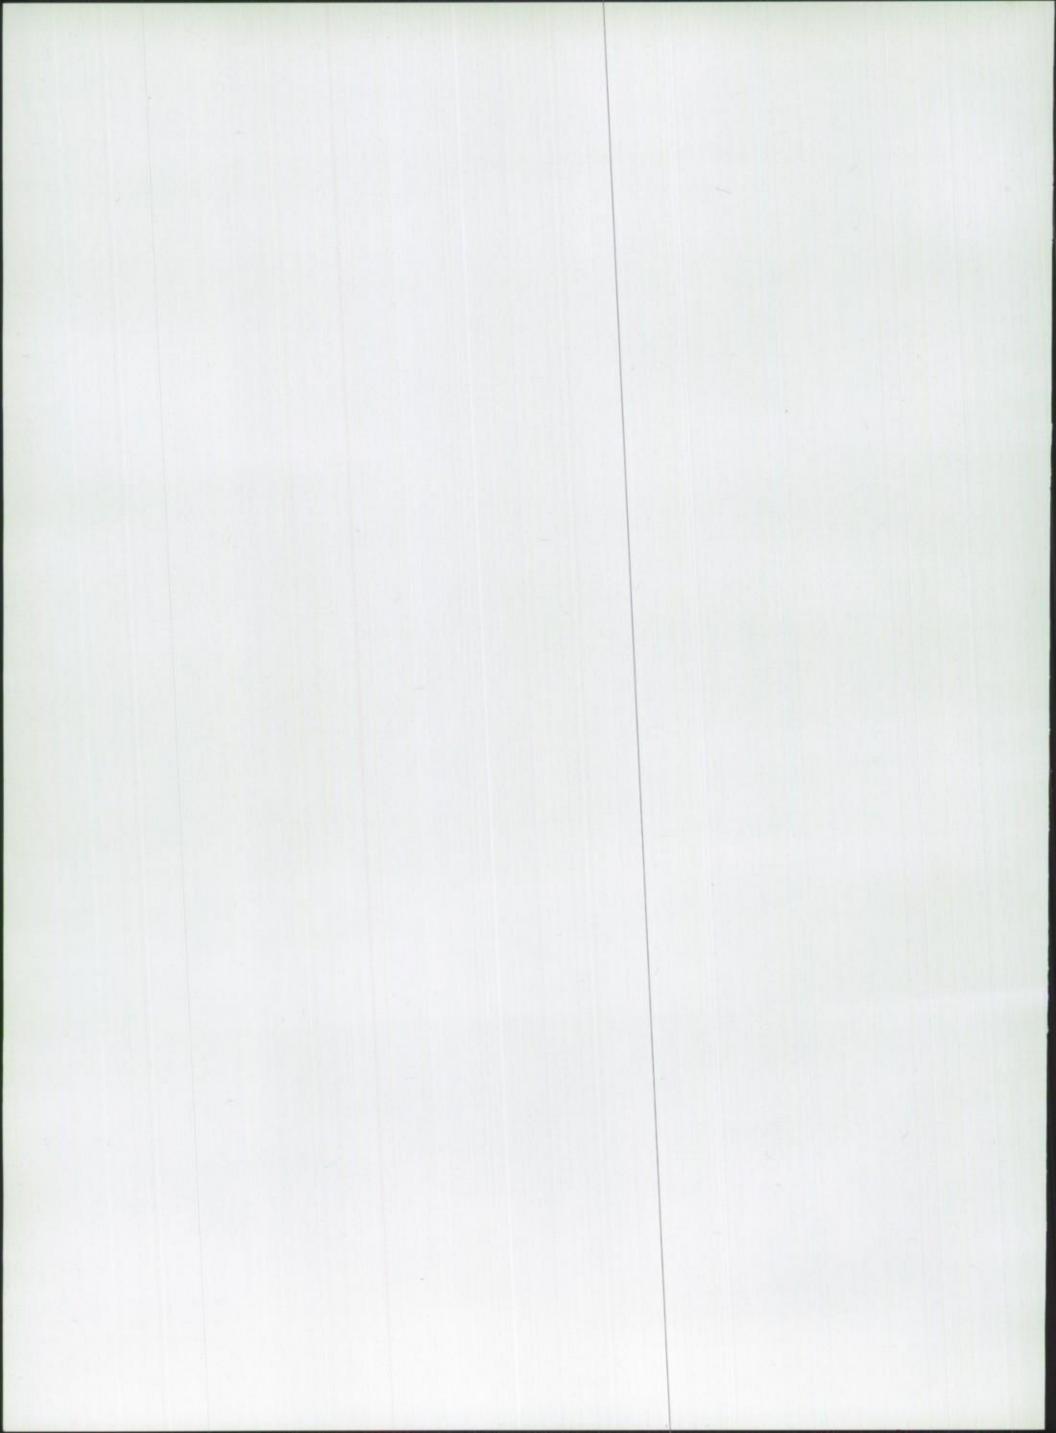

The 1984 Postscript staff extends a special thanks to Jerre Bridges (photography editor), luring the summer of 1983 at the Hemlock Haven Wendy Hart, Jon Brady, and Mark Weir, our dvanced yearbook workshop in Virginia. The photographers. As well, thank you to: Mrs. Gretchen Allen, Mr. Tony White, Mr. Watson Burts, Mr. For the first time Postscript was entered in David Boland, and Mr. John Gass, for their help tate competition at the University of North with the photographic aspect of the book.

Like a revolving door another year has spun by: old traditions honored and new ones begun, friendships bonded and horizons expanded. With our memories safely bound, and hopes for the future endless, we strive onward.
